Course Descriptions
B.A. Programme
Italian and English¹

2203099 Intensive Italian (6 non-credit hours)

At the end of the second semester the students can take the Italian Proficiency Test (IPT). Those who pass the test should be able to follow the second year courses which will be taught entirely in Italian. Those who do not pass the test or opt not to take it take Intensive Italian which is meant to fill the gap between first year general language courses and second year more specialized courses. In this course the student has to acquire the language proficiency to be able to follow the second year courses. For this reason, the course will focus on listening and speaking

2203105 Italian for Beginners (1) (3 Credit hours)

Prerequisite: none

This language course introduces students in a communicative way to the grammatical structures of Italian with the aim of training them in the four language skills: listening comprehension, reading, writing and oral skills. It covers the following fields of every day communication: greeting, introducing oneself, describing one's home, asking for prices, buying, asking for directions, specifying time and place etc. The following grammar issues will be trained: present tense of regular, irregular and modal verbs, definite and indefinite articles, negating, gender, numbers, demonstrative and indefinite pronouns.

2203106 Italian for Beginners (2) (3 Credit hours)

Prerequisite: 2203105

The course continues the introduction into the basics of Italian. It develops the skills acquired in Italian for Beginners (1) and aims at preparing students to understand written and spoken texts, as well as to produce them. It covers new fields of every day communication such as giving advice, telling what happened, asking for and describing directions in the city, inviting, expressing opinion and wishes, etc. The following new grammatical issues will be covered: imperative, perfect tense, prepositions, comparative and superlative.

2233116 Italian for Specialization (1) (6 Credit hours)

Prerequisite: none

This course targets students with no prior knowledge of the Italian language and aims at gradually introducing and developing all main four skills: reading, writing, speaking and listening through situations and contexts of daily life and acquainting them with typical scenes of the Italian culture.

¹ The description of courses which are not of the department of European Languages/Italian section are to be found in the study plans of the departments which teach these courses.

2233117 Italian for Specialization (2) (6 Credit hours)
Prerequisite : 2233116

This course builds on students' previous experience with Italian, adding to it more language rules, more vocabulary and more sentence structure, enabling them to read, write, listen and speak at a higher level within the context of daily situations.

2203143 Italian for Beginners (3) (3 Credit hours)
Prerequisite:2203106

The course is regarded as a continuation for the other two Italian courses (Italian for Beginners 1 & 2); it trains the four language skills, listening comprehension, writing, reading and oral skills, on a more advanced level. After finishing this course, the student will be able to act with self – assurance in every day life situations. The course contains some new topics such as: description of people's appearance, education and school, entertainment and TV, work and economics in Italy, industry and other more topics related to Italian society and culture.

2203225 Listening and Conversation/Italian (3 Credit hours)
Prerequisite: 2203098 or 2203099
