Learning Methodology

The students translate authentic texts in English and native languages, focusing on the type of the text, its structure, function, target readership, style, etc. The students work individually and in groups under direct supervision of the instructor. While translating and analyzing the translated text the students pay special attention to the semantic, lexical, stylistic features of the source text, bear in mind the aspect of pragmatics. They translate the text, revise and assess the translation editing it if necessary. The students enrich the stock of professional terminology, using bilingual, explanatory and electronic dictionaries. Illustrative and explanatory teaching method. Individual, pair and group work at practical classes solving and discussing the problems, posed by the lecturer, making conclusions, checking and evaluating the achieved results. Students utilize a wide range of translation techniques and working practices and assess their appropriateness to different types of translation

Projects and Assignments

- Students select a lengthy text (10 pages) on a relevant topic and provide a professional translation
- Students provide a list of problems faced while translation
- Students provide how they used online and paper dictionary tools in translation
- Students present an oral presentation on the translated assignment and project

Intended Grading Scale

According to the natural spread of final results using a normal curve distribution.

Notes:

- Concerns or complaints should be expressed in the first instance to the module lecturer; if no resolution is forthcoming, then the issue should be brought to the attention of the module coordinator (for multiple sections) who will take the concerns to the module representative meeting. Thereafter, problems are dealt with by the Department Chair and if still unresolved the Dean and then ultimately the Vice President. For final complaints, there will be a committee to review grading the final exam.
