Title and abstract of the doctoral thesis (within 150 words)Title: A comparative study between the Chinese writer Lu Xun and Naguib Mahfouz in Cultural ideas.

Lu Xun and Naguib Mahfouz are considered the pillars of Chinese and Arabic modern literature. Both have accomplished splendid achievements in their respective fields. In this research, composed of six chapters, I have tried to compare the differences and similarities of those great novelists' thoughts and their views to the western world, revolution, women and the intellectuals. The introduction, giving mainly a brief account of the biographical notes and literary achievements of the two novelists, Lu Xun and Naguib Mahfouz.

I have tried to make a comparison between their views of the western world. Both Lu Xun and Naguib Mahfouz accepted and absorbed the advanced world civilizations, including the western culture with their broad cultural views and knowledge. Lu Xun started to get in touch with the western culture when he was studying in Nanjing, and was exposed to various western modern cultural schools while he was in Japan. His thought and practice of "remolding the nation's nature" also took the western modern culture as a reference. Similarly, Mahfouz didn't isolate himself in his native civilization. Instead, he bravely absorbed different cultures, including the western culture. He received many modern western conceptions as well as techniques of expression and concepts which are quite noticeable in his late works.
